

Starting High School

I'm starting high school next year at _____.

It is exciting and I feel a little worried about high school. All the kids in year 6 feel this way. It is a big change.

There will be some important changes. Even though there will be changes, some stuff will stay the same.

The most important thing that will stay the same is:
My high school teachers want to help me just as much as my primary teachers have done. They want to help me with my work and they want to help me have fun.

There will be certain teachers who will get to know me well. These are the teachers I'll be able to talk to about what's happening. I can trust these teachers.

Even though high school feels new, strange and confusing, I'll start to understand the new routine and rules. I'll feel more relaxed about year 7.

Here are some things that will be the same.

Here are some things that will be different.

Starting high school will be okay!
